You too can make the music of the future. Using specialized electronic software and hardware, participants in this program record music or sounds, edit the recordings into musical compositions or sound collages, and then burn them to CDs with personalized labels. Prior experience with a musical instrument or the ability to read music is not a requirement for this activity. Younger musicians use age-appropriate music creating software. Intermediate composers find Garage Band to their liking. More advanced students seeking additional challenges can use Sibelius software to electronically notate music and print out the musical scores of their creations. These programs are offered each quarter of the day. A camper may sign up for two back to back programs to make up a half day program if desired.

Maximum Enrollment: 11
